Kelly and His Hosts are in Sore Trouble.

"ARE BUMS AND TRAMPS"

So Says Judge Hubbard—Clara J. Johnson a Supposed Heiress With a Mystery Hanging Over Her Turns up in Sacramento.

OMAHA, April 19.—Kelly's army of industrialists, wet, bedraggled and chilled to the bone, broke camp, started from Council Bluffs Chataqua grounds, east. During the night the ranks began to swell with the arrival from Nevada of sixty-five men and today further acquisitions were made, when two companies of commonwealers, 500 strong, reached camp from the west by way of the Union Pacific.

Judge Hubbard, attorney for the Northwestern Railway company, who was responsible for the calling out of the militia, today said:

"If these tramps and bums try to capture one of our trains, there will be trouble. We will not carry these vagrants for love or money, or be forced to try their capturing our rolling stock. In the eyes of the law, they are a band of beggars, who are organized for an unlawful purpose, and to prey on people who are compelled to feed them and move them on to the next station. This movement must be stopped now, and right here, and I don't think the people show good judgment in feeding these people. There is too much false sympathy about these men. We have had men among these people day and night and they have recognized people who have led criminal lives and served time in penal institutions, who are now soldiers in Kelly's army. Do you suppose, for a moment, that we intend to transport such a crowd over our lines and unload them upon the other cities along the route?"

"This would only remove the pest from one city to another, and under the laws of any of the states we could be held liable for damages."

A MYSTERY.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 19.—Clara J. Johnson, the girl for whom the detective of Denver has been looking for some time, has been located in Sacramento.

The girl was once in the custody of Mrs. Mary Cuneo, who often told her that her parents were rich, but refused to let her know who they were. The girl does not know her age, but thinks she is twenty years old. Her life with the Cuneo woman, who is known to the Sacramento police as the "Denver Terror," was of misery and abuse. The girl is now working in a dress-making establishment. Her friends will assist her in unraveling the mystery of her birth. She is a pretty girl with an olive complexion, dark brown hair, and large gray eyes.

Placing the Responsibility.

The supreme court judges of Massachusetts have decided, four to three, that the amendments to the municipal franchise bill proposed by its opponents, which provided that it should not take effect until ratified by the people, would be unconstitutional, and that the legislature itself must decide the matter. The square issue, therefore, will now come before the legislature.—Boston Woman's Journal.

VIGOR OF MEN

ERIE MEDICAL CO. BUFFALO, N. Y.

THE FIRST IRISH POTATOES.

Sir Walter Raleigh Planted Them Near Cork, but the People Feared Them.

Sir Walter Raleigh was an unprincipled adventurer and failed as an administrator and colonizer, but he had a most commendable taste for planting and gardening, and in these branches of effort his influence remains potent. Three hundred years have passed since he lived in Ireland. In the county of Cork, on the vast estate which had been bestowed upon him, but the yellow wall flowers which he brought to Ireland from the Azores still flourish and bloom in the very spot where he planted them.

Near by, at Youghal, near Cork, on the shores of the Blackwater estuary, stands the Affane cherry which he planted. Some cedars which he brought to Cork are still growing at a place called Tivoli. Four yew trees, whose branches have grown and interlaced into a sort of summer house, are pointed out as having sheltered Raleigh when he first smoked tobacco in his garden at Youghal.

Raleigh tried to make tobacco grow in Great Britain, but the climate was not found suitable to it. He succeeded, however, by introducing the habit of smoking it, in making it grow in plenty in other places.

More important to the world than the spot where Raleigh sat and smoked his Indian weed is another spot in his garden at Myrtle Grove, in this same Youghal. This spot is still bounded by the town wall of the thirteenth century.

It was here that Raleigh first planted a curious tuber brought from America, which thrives vastly better than his tobacco plants did.

This tuber Raleigh insisted was good to eat, though common report for a long time pronounced it poisonous. Some roots from his vines he gave to other land owners in Munster. They cultivated them and spread them abroad from year to year.

This plant was the Irish potato. Before many generations it became the staple food of the Irish people—almost the only food of a great many of them. It was the "Irish potato" which came back to America and became the groundwork, so to speak, of the American farmer's and workman's daily breakfast and dinner. Sir Walter's curious experiment in acclimatization became an economic step of the very first consequence, and the spot at Youghal which was its scene deserves marking with a monument much more than do the places where the blood of men has been shed in battle.—Youth's Companion.

He Had His Reward.

It was in a large department store that a gilded youth drifted up to the candy counter.

"Do you know," he said to the pretty young woman in charge, "if I were the proprietor of this establishment I should dismiss you?"

"Why?" she asked indignantly.

"In order to give the candy a chance," he answered.

And she gave him 14 pounds of 75 cent candy for 50 cents.—Detroit Free Press.

A Remarkable Diary.

A man who died in Berlin, Rensselaer county, at the age of 73 left a record which he began when 18 years old and continued for 55 years. The book, filled with methodical entries, shows that in these 52 years the man had smoked 628,715 cigars, of which he received 48,629 as presents, while for the remaining 585,086 he paid about $10,433. In 52 years, according to his bookkeeping, he had drunk 28,786 glasses of beer and 26,091 glasses of spirits, for all of which he spent $5,350. The diary closes with these words: "I have tried all things. I have seen many. I have accomplished nothing."—Albany Express.

Pope Leo's Banter.

Leo XIII has made merry upon the subject of church music in his dignified way. "Imagine," he once said, "St. Augustine, the African one, confessing that his heart had been touched by high notes and fiddles." The repetition of words is another feature objected to by this lettered pontiff, who when archbishop of Perugia whispered to his chaplain during a grand musical function, "Do you think they really mean 'amen' this time?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

DISTRICT COURT.

Dr. Pike Wins His Case Against Provo City.

A JUDGMENT FOR $500.00

Is Given Him to Make Right the Wrong Done Him When He Fell in the Ditch—A Heber City Civil Suit Is Being Tried Today.

Judge Smith is determined not to make inexcusable error hereafter through being misled by the attorneys in their statements to the jury of their pleadings. He gave examining all papers in each case critically and insisting, even at the risk of being considered technical, that the phraseology of the pleadings shall not be ambiguous and shall be in strict accordance with statute language and requirements, and that all proceedings in each case shall be exactly, in all details and minutiae, in accordance with the established rules of practice, and by so doing is reading the members of the bar here a very valuable lesson. It cost A. D. Gash this morning some annoyance and $25.00 in cash for the privilege of amending his complaint in the James B. Francis vs. A. Hatch & Co. case, the judge calling attention to certain defects in the complaint as well as his opposing counsel who took advantage of them.

During Judge Smith's argument upon and explanation of these points, and especially with giving him very clear and lucid construction of statutes and decisions of law, the attention of each attorney in court, and especially of the young attorneys, is absorbingly given to him, and they are drinking down the words of instruction given so freely and so plainly with all the avidity they used to manifest when their favorite professor was instructing them at college.

The routine report of proceedings in the First District court for today is as follows:

The jury in the suit brought against Provo city by Dr. W. R. Pike returned late last evening with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff assessing damages at $500. A stay of execution for thirty days was granted to prepare motion for a new trial.

This morning the costs in the case of Ella Deprez vs. the U. P. Ry. company were returned and fixed at $44.00. The costs in the Shoemaker vs. Engle case were reduced by $17.00, witness fees for B. Bachman Jr. charged in the original cost bill.

The case on trial today is entitled James B. Francis vs. A. Hatch & Co. et al, parties of Heber City, Wasatch county. A. D. Gash and J. W. N. Whitecotton represent the plaintiff and S. R. Thurman and E. A. Wedgwood represent the defendants.

In this case Mr. Francis is suing for $128.80 for property levied upon and taken away by defendants, alleged by plaintiff to have been exempt from execution and for $1,500 damages alleged to have been sustained by such levy.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

AN OLD PRESCRIPTION.

On This Particular Occasion It Failed to Do Its Work.

The crowd had gathered about a horse and buggy in the middle of the street. The horse had balked.

"Tie a string around his ear," said one of the bystanders. "It gives him something else to think of. I never knew it to fail."

A string was produced and wound tightly round one of the animal's ears. It had no effect.

"Blindfold him," suggested another.

A handkerchief was tied over his eyes and an effort made to start him.

Same result.

"Back him," said the exasperated owner. "I tried that."

"Try him with an ear of corn."

The ear of corn failed to move the obstinate horse.

"I'll see if I can't persuade him some other way," said the exasperated owner of the animal.

He took a whip and belabored the beast with it till somebody threatened to have him arrested.

Then he kicked him awhile.

All in vain.

Finally a benevolent looking old gentleman forced his way through the crowd and said:

"I have seen a great many balky horses started by building a fire under them. Can you get some straw or shavings?"

A boy was sent to a neighboring furniture store for some excelsior. He came back presently with a huge armful. It was placed on the ground under the horse and a lighted match touched to it.

As the first feeble flame rose from it and the smoke began to curl about its legs the horse unbent a little. He turned his head, took a calm survey of the situation, and when the combustible stuff burst into a big blaze he moved forward about six feet, in full possession of his faculties and without any unnecessary haste, and stopped again.

And the elegant buggy was damaged $25 worth by the flames before it occurred to anybody to scatter the blazing stuff.

And then an old colored man in a faded suit of secondhand clothes and a hat with half the brim gone went out and spoke kindly to the high spirited animal, rubbed his nose, patted him on the neck, climbed into the damaged buggy and said, "Git along, sonny."

And the horse moved off at a brisk trot, with head high in the air.—Chicago Tribune.

Wanted a Good Foot.

Models are an important part of a sculptor's need. I don't doubt whether in this particular we differ from our Greek predecessors, for we read of choice models, such as peacocks, given by Phidias to his models, showing how much he valued them, presumably because it was as difficult then as now to get good ones.

To be a model is a business of itself, and when we remember the number of art schools there are, even in London alone, and the many artists who are entirely dependent upon them, it may be realized that a large body they must be.

The men are mostly Italians, chiefly, I am told, from the neighborhood of Naples. The women are, as a rule, English and have often sat from babies. To find a well formed foot is almost an impossibility among the best of them, owing to the long cramping in boots, but a friend once told me that he had a cast of the foot of an Indian woman that was as beautiful as the foot of a Greek statue.

Our English models lack often the suppleness of figure that distinguishes more southern races, such as the Italian, which is partly accounted for by the heavy, cumbersome clothes our climate necessitates. But such as they are we have to make the best of them, and a really good one is eagerly sought after.—Good Words.

The "Tomb of Cain."

The early traditions concerning the city of Damascus are curious and interesting, even though unworthy and contradictory. By some of the ancient writers it was maintained that the city stands on or near the site of the garden of Eden, and just outside there is a beautiful meadow of red earth from which, it is said, God took the material from which he created Adam. This field is called Ager Damascenus, and near its center there formerly stood a pillar which was said to mark the precise spot where our first parent was created. A few miles out there is an eminence called the Mountain of Abel, supposed by some to be the place where the
